ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, COMMONWEALTH BUILDING,
BOSTON, Jan. 20, 1887.

To the Honorable Speaker of the House of Representatives :

In accordance with section 9 of chapter 17 of the Public Statutes, I have the honor to submit to the general court the annual report of this department.

The total number of cases that have required the attention of the department is 388. The following table is a classification thereof:—

| | 1885. | 1886. |
|---|-------|-------|
| Indictments for murder, | 16 | 23 |
| Exceptions and reports in criminal cases, | 92 | 104 |
| Information upon relation of public officers, | 46 | 129 |
| Information upon relation of private persons, | 18 | 11 |
| Miscellaneous, | 93 | 13 |
| Civil suits, | — | 8 |
| Total, | 265 | 388 |

I have attended to the disposition of the following cases in the Supreme Judicial Court, in which the prisoners were charged with the crime of murder : —

IN THE COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX.

On February 1, at East Cambridge, Charles Hayes, a colored man, for the murder of Mrs. Matilda Robinson, also colored, by cutting her throat with a razor, on September 3, 1885. The case was tried before Justices Devens and Holmes. E. G. Walker and Peter Casey, esqs., were counsel for prisoner.

The trial occupied two days, and the prisoner was convicted of murder in the second degree, and subsequently sentenced to State prison for life.

Also at East Cambridge, on December 13, 1886, George Francis Baker and Mary Ann Jane Baker, his wife, for the murder at Groton of Mrs. Susannah Prescott, on November 11, 1885. Mrs. Prescott was a woman over eighty-eight years of age, who owned a life estate in the house in which she lived. Both Mr. and Mrs. Baker lived in the same house with Mrs. Prescott and looked after and took care of her, besides paying her fifty dollars per year for rent.

On the morning of November 11, Mrs. Prescott was found in her kitchen lying in a pool of blood, partly undressed and covered by an old mat. She was not then dead; she subsequently died. Both Mr. and Mrs. Baker were indicted for the murder and tried together, before Justices Devens and Holmes, with F. T. Greenhalge, and W. H. Attwood, esqs., as counsel. Mr. Baker was acquitted. Mrs. Baker was convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to the house of correction at East Cambridge for life.

IN THE COUNTY OF PLYMOUTH.

The most important murder trial of the year was that of Samuel F. Besse of Wareham, Plymouth County, for the murder of Richard M. Lawton, — a murder of the most daring, brutal and cold-blooded character. The evidence in this case was mainly circumstantial, but of such a character and so well connected that the chain of evidence became complete and left no doubt as to the guilt of the prisoner. The trial began on May 18, 1886, and occupied three days. Chief Justice Morton and Associate Justice Holmes presiding.

The victim of the tragedy was but twenty-eight years of age, a young man of excellent habits and exemplary character, residing with his father in the town of Westport. His occupation was that of buying eggs for the market, or running an egg route, as it is termed.

On the morning of December 23, 1885, persons passing on the Plainville road in Acushnet discovered, at a point 100 yards east from the Plainville hotel, a horse attached to an express wagon. The animal was in a jaded condition, and had every indication of having been driven for a long distance. Upon the wagon were numerous bloody marks, and inside, nearly concealed from view by egg boxes, — only the feet being visible, — was the body of him who was afterwards identified as Richard N. Lawton. The body was badly mutilated. Five large wounds were found on the left side of the body, and over the chin and face were scattered between thirty and forty small wounds. Four buckshot were found in the head, two in the throat; the skull was fractured and a part of it driven into the brain. From the fact that the pocketbook of Lawton, known to have contained something over one hundred dollars, was missing, it was evident that robbery had been the motive for the crime. Lawton was last seen alive at ten o'clock on the day of the murder at the house of one Handy, on Fearing Hill, which he left to go to the house of another customer about two miles distant. To this place he never came; and from this fact it was supposed that the murder was committed between the two places, and particularly so, as between them is a long strip of woods. Near the road, about midway in these woods, was discovered evidence of a team having run into the woods, of a quantity of leaves such as Lawton used in packing of the eggs, of a wagon cushion saturated with blood, also shavings in a similar condition, and in a tree near by several buckshot were found embedded. The next morning several persons said that they saw a man driving a wagon of the same kind as Lawton's, and that that man was Besse. Besse was also seen in the woods by one Westgate, who heard the report of a gun, and then some one call "whoa." Westgate spoke to Besse, who said he had shot a rabbit, and that his dog had gone on, and would he (Westgate) not send him back.

These, with other facts, led to the arrest of Besse, which was accomplished with some difficulty, first, because he could not be found, and second, when found, fought before he could be captured. He attempted to account for his whereabouts during the time in which the crime was committed, but unsuccessfully. There was subsequently found a bag of shot corresponding with those found in the tree and in the head of Lawton in the house of Besse's father; also a comparatively good pair of pants stained with blood and from which a piece, near the knee, had been recently cut. Besse was known to be poor and rarely to have any money. The same day of and the day after the murder it was proven that he expended over fifty dollars in money of the same general kind known to have been in the possession of Lawton, both in Wareham and New Bedford. These facts, together with much other testimony, which came out at the trial, constituted an unbroken chain of evidence which the able counsel—Hosea Kingman, esq., now District Attorney, and John C. Sullivan, esq.—for the prisoner failed to break. The trial lasted three days, and resulted in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The counsel for the prisoner took exceptions to several rulings of the court at the trial, and these were argued before the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth at the November sitting. In January the same were overruled, and subsequently the prisoner was sentenced to be hung in March next. District Attorney Bumpus assisted me, and he and the officers who prepared the case for trial deserve much credit.

The indictment pending at the time of my last report against Charles Johnson, for murder, with a razor, of James Burns of Swanzey, Bristol County, May 9, 1885, was disposed of by defendant pleading guilty to the charge of manslaughter, and receiving sentence of twenty years in the State prison.

The indictment pending at the time of my last report against Timothy and John Coffee of Boston, Suffolk County, for the murder, with a knife, of John Cullen, has been disposed of. John Coffee died. Timothy Coffee was tried and convicted of manslaughter, receiving a sentence of ten years in the State prison.

The case of Frank Mitchell, charged with the murder of Ellen Mitchell, on July 20, 1885, by choking, which has been pending in Suffolk County since my last report, has been disposed of by the discharge of the prisoner on his own recognizance.

The case of Charles W. Cobleigh for the murder of Etta A. Cobleigh, at Templeton, Worcester County, on June 20, 1886, by shooting, is still pending; the defendant being sent to the lunatic hospital to await the further order of the court.

The case of William A. Lyons of Foxborough, Norfolk County, for the murder of Elizabeth Arrington of said Foxborough, was disposed of by the defendant being discharged on his own recognizance.

The following indictments for murder are now pending:—

Herbert I. Hoxie, of New Bedford, Bristol County, for the murder of Herbert L. Woodward, otherwise Herbert L. Hoxie, by pushing him into the Acushnet River, on August 9, 1885, whereby he was drowned.

Sarah J. Robinson, Charles C. Beers and Thomas R. Smith, of Somerville, Middlesex County, for the murder of Lizzie A. Robinson, by poison, on February 1, 1886.

Sarah J. Robinson, Charles C. Beers and Thomas R. Smith, of Somerville, Middlesex County, for the murder of William J. Robinson, by poison, on August 9, 1886.

Patrick McDonald of Athol, Worcester County, for the murder of his wife, Margaret McDonald, with an axe, on August 18, 1886.

Abram J. Lamb, alias Sarah B. Wheaton, and Mary B. Elliot, all of Boston, Suffolk County, for the murder of Abram J. Lamb, alias the younger of that name, by poison, on October 16, 1886.

Emil F. Kempf of Boston, Suffolk County, for the murder of George F. Emmons, with a knife, November 25, 1886.

William B. O'Connor, otherwise Jockey Connor, of Lawrence, Essex County, for the murder of Hannah Langan, with an axe, July 25, 1886.

The case of The Attorney-General, ex rel. Civil Service Commissioners, v. The Mayor and Aldermen of Northampton is one of some general public interest, and of particular interest to all believers in the civil service law. The case is an information by the Attorney-General, asking that a writ of certiorari issue to compel the appointment of certain persons certified as qualified by the Civil Service Commissioners, by the Mayor and Aldermen aforesaid. The facts are as follows: Upon a requisition from the authorities of the city of Northampton, the Civil Service Examiner held an examination to secure a suitable person to be appointed on the police force of the city. In accordance with the legal rules of the Civil Service Commissioners, three persons were certified as eligible. One of these three was designated as a veteran. It also happened that he had the highest per cent. in the competitive examination. The Mayor and Aldermen of the said city refused to appoint this man, but did appoint another, basing the action upon their supposed discretionary right of selection from the three persons certified as eligible. This discretionary right, it was claimed by the Civil Service Commissioners, did not exist. It was contended that, by the terms of the Civil Service Act, section 14, clause 6, chapter 320, Acts 1884, an absolute preference was provided for the veteran whose other qualifications were equal, — a state of facts existing in this particular case. The authorities of the city refused to accept this construction of the statute, and, there being several other similar cases, the above-mentioned proceedings were instituted. The case has been argued but not yet decided.

The civil case of much importance known as the “bay-window case,” — The Attorney General, ex. rel. Harbor and Land Commissioners, v. Henry Bigelow Williams, — which was referred to at some length in my last report, was not, as was supposed at that time, finally disposed of. The case had passed through all possible stages in the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, and a final decree ordering the removal of the projections was made by the full court. The defendant then entered into an absolute agreement with the Harbor and Land Commissioners to remove the same on or before a certain time. After he had begun to remove the same, Mr. W. W. Bailey, — a citizen of New Hampshire, — to whom the defendant had mortgaged the whole property in question, filed a petition in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts, asking that the defendant might be restrained from removing the bay-windows upon the ground that the value of the property was very materially decreased thereby. After several hearings, the United States Court refused to interfere with the decree of the State Court, and the petition of Bailey was refused. The defendant Williams removed the windows in accordance with his agreement. In accordance with the decree of the State Court he also paid the costs in full.

Two cases, — Wesson v. Commonwealth and the Town of Milford v. Commonwealth, — both referred to in my last report, are of considerable interest, inasmuch as in their decision an interpretation, as to effect and limitation, of chapter 195 of the Public Statutes will be necessary. The facts of the first case are as follows: Martin Wesson, with whom the Board of Trustees of the State Workhouse at Bridgewater made a contract for the employment of the inmates thereof, made a claim against the Commonwealth, by petition to the Superior Court, as provided in said chapter 195, for, as he says, the breach of said contract at the time of the burning of the buildings of the institution. The case was tried before Judges Pitman, Mason and Barker, sitting together, as provided in said chapter. The claim of the petitioner was disallowed, and the case was taken, on report, to the Supreme Judicial Court, where it has just been argued.

The second case was a suit by the town of Milford to recover certain sums of money paid for the support of a State pauper. It was tried before Judges Knowlton, Mason and Barker, who ruled that the case was not one coming within their jurisdiction under said chapter 195, — the claim not being one “founded on contract for the payment of money,” as provided by section 1 of said chapter. This case was also taken, on exceptions, to the Supreme Judicial Court, where it has just been argued.

In obedience to the resolve of the Legislature of 1884, chapter 61, I commenced bills in equity against the Boston & Albany Railroad, in the Supreme Judicial Court in Suffolk County; the same were heard before a single justice, and the demurrers of the defendant were sustained. The cases were then reserved at the request of the parties, and were argued before the full bench at the last January sitting. In both cases the bills were dismissed. Reported in 142 Mass. 146.

A case of considerable interest, — that of the Commonwealth v. Frank Dextra, — involving what is generally termed the “Sunday laws,” was tried. The defendant was a barber in the city of Worcester, and was complained of for keeping open his shop to do his usual and ordinary business on Sunday. His defence was that shaving beards and cutting hair were works of necessity, and that hence he had a right to do them. The full court decided, upon exceptions, that the keeping open by the defendant of his shop to do his ordinary business with any one who might enter was in itself in violation of the statutes; and that the question of whether shaving beards and cutting hair was a matter of necessity was not involved, and overruled the exceptions.

The collections of this year are much larger in amount than for many years. This is owing to the corporation and insurance agents' taxes that have been received, some of which date back to the years of 1881 and 1882. The total collections of the year (for a more particular description of which see pp. 27-29 of this report) amount to $22,717.19. Of this amount, $16,653.17 was received from corporations for taxes; $1,097.21 from insurance agents, and the balance, $4,966.81, from various sources. See page 28.

The department has been called upon to advise with the heads of other departments of the State government much more than in years past. The business coming from those sources has been very materially increased.

The usual number of papers in requisition cases have been examined and forwarded to His Excellency the Governor with appropriate recommendations.

In accordance with the authority given me by chapter 214 of the Acts of 1886, for the publication of reports in capital trials, I have had prepared the proceedings in the trial of Thomas W. Piper for the murder of Mabel H. Young, the same being now in the hands of the State printers.

Harvey N. Shepard, esq., has continued in the office of Assistant Attorney-General, and has rendered faithful service. In accordance with the authority given me by chapter 216 of the Acts of 1886, I appointed Henry A. Wyman, esq., as an assistant in the department, who, in addition to the valuable service rendered in the preparation of briefs in criminal cases, etc., has had charge, and is entitled to the credit of, the collections which have been made by the department. I annex details of the work of the department, with tables.

EDGAR J. SHERMAN,

Attorney-General.
